Woman recovers after removal of 3.5kg adrenal gland tumour

Sumati.Yengkhom @timesgroup.com

Kolkata: Doctors at Medical College and Hospital (MCH) Kolkata removed a rare, "giant" tumour, measuring 25 cm x 20 cm x 10 cm and weighing 3.5 kg, from the adrenal gland of a 42-year-old woman, who is also hepatitis B-positive.

Parbati Dhara from Rishra was detected with phaeochromocytoma, a rare tumour of the adrenal gland.

The two adrenal glands--right and left-are located right above the right and left kidneys. The incidence of this tumour is estimated at two to eight persons per one million population. Experts pointed out giant pheochromocytomas, as phalarger eochromocytomas than 7 cm are called, are rare and challenging to operate on. This tumour is also called a "biological time bomb" for its propensity to cause sudden death. The initial symptoms may be headache, palpitation, sweating and fluctuating blood pressure.

Given the risks, doctors Animesh Maity, Rana Bhattacharya, Partha Pratim Chakraborty and Neeti Agarwal and a team from the endocrinology department prepared the patient well in advance with medications for the surgery. "With the help of my team, including doctors Uttam Mondal, Anwesh Biswas, Adrija Basak and Pradip Mondal, we could remove the giant tumour. We have come across reports of only 36 cases of giant pheochromocytomas from across the globe," said Dhritiman Maitra, associate professor, who is in charge of Breast and Endocrine Surgery Services and Clinicat MCH.

Doctors said anaesthetic management before, during and after the risky surgery was critical as the blood pressure could swing between dangerously high during the procure and abysmally low after. The anaesthesia team, led by doctors Harshaprava Dutta and Gargi Bhadra Das-Gupta, managed the tricky phase.

The patient recovered well after the removal of the tumour and left adrenal gland. "One in 100 with high BP may have an underlying phaeochromocytoma. They secrete extreme high levels of nor-adrenaline or adrenaline that can cause high BP and various other problems, including sudden cardiac arrest or brain stroke," said Maitra.

Kolikata: Bengal again recorded a high turnout of women voters in the fourth phase of the Lok Sabha elections on Monday, keeping with the trend in the past three rounds.

Women voters outnumbered their male counterparts in the Lok Sabha seast of Behramptore, Krishmangar, Ranaghal, Burdwan East and Birbhum. The average turnout of women tuencies on Monday was recorded as 14.55, over 25 higher than that of men (72%). The total turnout at all the eight seats, which went to polls on Monday was 80.2%.

Additional chief electoral officer
Arindam Neogi said Bengal had 38 crore male and 3.7 crore female voters.
The data released in Jan 2024 by the EC, showed that for every 1,000 male voters in Bengal, there were 968 female voters.

In the third phase of the election or in the third phase of the election on May 7, nearly 11% more women voted then men in Malda (North), Malda (South), Murshidabad and Jangipur. The highest gender gap in voting was witnessed in Jangipur, where 13.8% more women voted then men, and the lowest was witnessed in Murshidabad, whe re 9% more women voted than men.
This is also a first, in which gender gap had exceeded double digits in several Lok Sabha constituencies, said an official.

In the first two phases of polls in In the first two phases of polis in Bengal, more women than men voted in four of the six Lok Sabha seats, Alipurduar, Cooch Behar, Balurghat and Raiganaj. In the Jalpaiguri Lok Sabha constituency, the women voters' turnout (83.4%) was almost close to that of male voters (83.9%).

Kolkata: The number of static surveillance teams (SST) in Kol-kata Police that carry out nakas during elections is being increa-sed and also inspectors and sub-inspectors are staying back at po-lice stations at night in a bid to qu-ell any possible clashes and add-ress emergency issues ahead of the polis.
